DUFFY'S CASE MAY BE GIVEN JURY THIS EVE

Dixon Men on Stand for Defense During Thursday

(Telegraph Special Service)
Cedar Rapids, Ia., April 13—The case against John W. Duffy of Dixon, Ill., whose trial on a charge of perjury went into its third day this morning, will probably reach the jury late this afternoon or this evening, the defense having completed presentation of its evidence late Thursday afternoon.

Thus far the trial has presented nothing more than a repetition of the testimony taken in the Alburnett bank robbery case, in which Duffy was acquitted and out of which the perjury case arose.

The state rested its case after presenting thirteen witnesses, who testified virtually as they had in the robbery case. The state claims that Duffy perjured himself when he took the stand in his own defense during the previous trial and swore that he was at the Union Station in Cedar Rapids, Ia., at the time of the bank robbery, where he delivered a cargo of alcohol to Roscoe Shomler (who is now serving a life term for participation in the robbery) and that Shomler used the car in which he (Duffy) had brought the alcohol to Cedar Rapids in robbing the bank.

Bankers are called.
The bankers, M. M. Strait and A. E. Schueler, who were held up by an Alburnett townspeople, were called by the state to identify again the defendant as one of the robbers. Other witnesses were called to connect Duffy with the Buick car in which the robbers went to Alburnett and in which Shomler, convicted of the robbery, and Duffy started to Chicago the night of the robbery.

Among the witnesses called by the state in an attempt to trace the movements of Duffy on the day of the robbery, and thus prove him guilty of perjury, were Orville Miller, Alburnett tank wagon driver; R. E. Mellon, insurance adjuster; Chief of Police W. C. Benesh; Ted Clark, garageman; Fred Blumck, hotel clerk from Clinton; Orlean Powers, Alburnett school girl; Edward Anderson, farmer living near Alburnett; and Lester Weber, farm lad of Alburnett.

Defense Witnesses.
Among the first witnesses for the defense was W. M. Hoover, formerly of Sterling, Ill., now a local automobile salesman, who testified he knows Duffy well and who said that at about the time of the robbery he had talked with Duffy in the waiting room of the Cedar Rapids depot.

Other defense witnesses were Leo J. Curran, F. F. Strub, G. E. Richards and H. W. Hartman, all of Dixon, Ill., who in response to questions from defense counsel George Claesen, testified that they knew Duffy well, that his moral character was good, that he was known for his truth and veracity and that he never used tobacco.

It is expected the arguments will be made to the jury this afternoon. The jurors—nine women and three men—have been under close surveillance of the court and are kept in closed chambers during recesses of court, but are allowed to spend the nights at their homes.

Breaks Records for Light Plane Flight

St. Paul, Minn., April 13—(AP)—Driven down by a blinding snowstorm, Gene Shank landed his 90 horsepower biplane at 9:18 A. M. here today, after establishing a world's record for endurance flights of light planes, as shown in records available here.

The former mark of 12 hours and 38 minutes for light planes equipped with less than 100 horsepower motor as shown in available records was made by Harry Brooks in a Ford light plane when he flew from Detroit to Titusville, Fla., recently. Brooks was killed when his plane dropped into the sea.

Shank took the air at 6:50 P. M. yesterday in his 90 horsepower plane with the announced intention of bettering the world's endurance record of 53 hours and 36 minutes recently set by Haldeman and Stinson. He carried 143 gallons of fuel, but made plans to refuel in the air from another plane.

FOUR YOUTHS IN JAIL BREAK AT OREGON TODAY

Escaped from County Jail by Climbing Up Old Chimney

Authorities of northern Illinois cities have been asked to watch for four youthful prisoners who made a daring escape from the Ogle county jail at Oregon sometime after midnight today by tunneling through an old chimney, which is now used as a ventilator, up which they climbed nearly 25 feet and from which they jumped, first to the jail roof, then to the roof of the garage adjacent to the jail, and from there to the ground.

The fugitives are:
Henry Foulk, 23, Excelsior Springs, Mo.; height 5 feet 8 inches, weight about 160 pounds; good looking.
George Houston, 20, Excelsior Springs, Mo.; height 5 feet 6 inches; weight 150 pounds, dark complexion.
Luther Barbee, 15; Excelsior Springs, Mo.; height 5 feet 5 inches, weight 130 pounds. Many pimples on face.

Clarence Hern, 17; Oregon; height 5 feet 6 inches, weight 150 pounds. Chin very pointed. Has little to say.

One Shot Father.
The first three were being held on charges of larceny in the alleged robbery of two stores in Rochelle, March 28; and young Hern was held to answer charges of attempt to kill his father, whom he shot through a window at their home near Oregon several weeks ago, seriously wounding the man as he lay asleep on a lounge.

Investigation showed that the four youthful prisoners, who had not been locked in their cells but had been given the freedom of the "bull pen," had removed one of two bars from a small ventilator near the ceiling above the first tier of cells, through which they were able to crawl into the chimney.

Getting into the old chimney they found their way further blocked by several steel bars, imbedded in the brick, but they were able to dig out enough bricks to permit moving one of the bars, and through a remarkably small opening they squeezed their way to the climb up the chimney, reaching the top of which they were able to make their way to the ground by the series of roofs.

Score Rounded Up.
Other prisoners in the jail claim to have heard nothing unusual from the boys, but their stories are doubted.

During the late morning hours Sheriff Sam Good received word that about twenty strangers had been rounded up in the railroad yards at Savanna, and he left at once for that place to see if any of those held are his "birds."

Vrooman to Speak to Big Crowd Here

Reports today from the attendance committee of the Dixon Kiwanis club indicated a record crowd for the meeting to be held Tuesday evening in the parlors of the Christian church when Carl Vrooman of Bloomington, First Assistant Secretary of Agriculture under President Woodrow Wilson, will be the speaker. He will address the members of the local Kiwanis club and a delegation of about a hundred farmers Tuesday evening upon the subject of "Agriculture and Economics."

During the first years of the war, Mr. Vrooman was sent out from Washington as spokesman of the federal administration to talk upon important war problems. A number of times he was President Wilson's personal representative, explaining the President's position on many of the issues. He was sent overseas by the President in the interests of food production and spoke to the French Academy of Agriculture and was received with marked enthusiasm.
In January, 1921, Mr. Vrooman was selected by the American Farm Bureau Federation to handle the "grist corn" movement. Over 700,000 bushels of corn were collected by him from the American farmers for the starving people of Europe. In recognition of this the British government decorated him with the order of officer in the order of "Polonia Restituta."

Funeral Services to be Held Monday at Catholic Church

Nicholas Plein, a resident of this city for over 60 years, died at the home of his step-daughter, Mrs. Ed. Netzelman at 3:30 Thursday afternoon, where he had spent the past winter. He was one of 13 children, was born in Trier, Germany, Nov. 8, 1848, coming to this country when 16 years of age and had made his home in Dixon ever since. His wife and one son preceded him in death in 1911. He leaves to mourn his passing, two daughters and two sons: Mrs. Harry Osborne and Louise Plein of this city; Mrs. S. W. Michaels of Los Angeles, Calif.; and George Plein of Chicago; one step-daughter, Mrs. Ed. Netzelman; and one brother, Charles Plein, of this city.

All Italy Rejoices Over King's Escape

Rome, April 13—(AP)—Italy was united in rejoicing today that King Victor Emmanuel had escaped death at Milan when a bomb exploded killing sixteen persons, and injuring forty.

Public buildings and private houses were beagued with the national colors. Walls were placarded with manifestos denouncing the attempt and deploring the loss of life. Above all the manifestos exulted that "Re Soldato" (The Soldier King) whose reign saw the redemption of the lost provinces and the reborn of an hereditary enemy—Austria—had escaped an attempt upon his life.

Romans saw upon the walls a stirring proclamation from the Government or Price Spada Potenziari, issued from the city's famous capitol, from which many ringing calls to patriotic action have emanated throughout the ages. The proclamation concluded: "Romans! In contrast to the murderous hand which had no horror at holding the instrument of death, there remain the blessed hands of millions of citizens ever strongly holding their instruments of labor and bearing aloft the flags of the mother country to show the Soldier King their passionate devotion."

Similar expressions were forthcoming from the provincial governors throughout the country and from patriotic societies.

The Fascists of Trent, formerly Austrian territory, sent homage "to Perugia was placarded with inscriptions of anti-national infamy" the victims of anti-national infamy" and "long live the king" and "long live the duke" Florence was decked with banners celebrating the escape of the monarch.

"The startled soul of the entire nation entwines itself at this moment with ever and ever more intense affection about your majesty," Premier Mussolini said in a message to the king.

The premier sent a squad of special inspectors to Milan with orders to leave no stone unturned to bring those responsible for the outrage to justice.

King and Queen Find Henry Good Company

London, April 13—(AP)—Englishmen reading the Daily Mail today speculated as to what Henry Ford, King George and Queen Mary discussed for two hours over the tea cups yesterday.

The paper said their Majesties arrived at Cliveden, country home of Lady Astor, for a call at almost the same time as Mr. Ford came as a week-end guest. For nearly two hours the hostess and her three guests chatted together.

Curiosity as to what was said is likely to go unsatisfied since intimate conversations of this sort rarely find their way into print. It was assumed that King George found the talk agreeable since he and the queen could have withdrawn earlier if they wished, inasmuch as it is customary for sovereigns to make the first move in society circles.

Evans in Denials

Pittsburgh, April 13—(AP)—The case of the Ku Klux Klan against five former members, seeking to restrain them from interfering with the operations of the order in Pennsylvania, was brought to a close in Federal Court here today, with Hiram W. Evans as the last witness. Evans entered a sweeping denial of practically every charge made by the defense against himself and the Klan.

Five Girls are Found Aboard U. S. Battle Ships.

Washington, April 13—(AP)—Five girls who sought adventure on the high seas might still be sailing with Uncle Sam's navy had not one of them confided to her chum that she intended to ship on a destroyer as a stowaway. But she did, and now five girls are on land again, one sailor is under arrest, and a Court of Inquiry will go into the matter.

The girl who told was Cynthia Alberta Poole, 15-year-old high school girl of St. Petersburg, Fla. The chum told Cynthia's parents and her father got in touch with the naval authorities. A search of the destroyer Billingsley resulted in the discovery of the girl and she was put ashore at Mayport, Fla.

Poole's message also resulted in a general search of vessels in south Atlantic waters and four other girls were found. Besides the Poole girl, the navy had been informed that one girl each was discovered on the light cruiser Concord, the destroyer Sands and the destroyer repair ship Dobbin. Dispatches from Florida, however, accounted for a fourth besides Miss Poole.

The four gave their names as Billy Lacer, Rose McGuire, Flossie Rice and Ramilda Avary. Placed ashore at Key West by the Concord, they said they had "shipped" at New Orleans to return to their homes in Philadelphia where they were employed as waitresses. All were given fares back to New Orleans.

Cynthia Poole was said to have told the Commander of the Billingsley that she met a sailor named Kramer at a soft drink stand in St. Petersburg when the vessel was anchored there. She added that Kramer, who is being held by the authorities, persuaded her to board the destroyer.

FEAR ROCKFORD MAN VICTIM OF UNKNOWN THUGS

Not Heard From for Over Week: Went to Chicago Then

Rockford, April 13—Because he has not been heard from for a week, since he went to Chicago to bring back a truck load of potatoes, friends of Ben Rose, 52, produce merchant, today asked police to institute a search for him.

Rose left here with a motor truck and considerable money Thursday, April 8. He intended to drive to Chicago, buy a load of potatoes and return to Rockford the next day.

A friend here received a telephone call from him Friday. Rose asked him to meet him in Chicago, Saturday. The friend kept the appointment, but Rose did not appear.

Never Arrived at Market.
Inquiry at the produce merchant's establishment where Rose was to have purchased his potatoes revealed that the Rockford man had never been there.

Friends of Rose are fearful that he was "taken for a ride" robbed of his money and truck and left dead or dying in some out of the way spot.

Rockford Police Active.
Rockford police were in touch with the Chicago department today endeavoring to get trace of the man. Rose is unmarried and has no relatives here.

Offer Rewards for Slayers of Worker

Chicago, April 13—(AP)—Two watchers of the republican faction of United States Senator Deneen have located the house in which they said they were held prisoners during the primary elections Tuesday and today police believed the gang that kidnapped them was responsible also for the slaying of Octavius Granady, Negro, Deneen candidate for ward commitment.

Two rewards of $1,000 each were offered for the arrest of the slayers of the ward candidate by Judge Daniel P. Trude and Edward R. Litsinger, successful candidate for renomination to the Board of Review.

Coroner Oscar Wolff, who yesterday dismissed a jury when four members admitted knowledge of campaign activities of Morris Eller, Thompson-Small candidate opposing Granady, said he would impanel a new jury today.

NEW DRY DISTRICT

FRIDAY, THE 13th CHEATED OF THREE INTENDED VICTIMS

Birger, Rongetti and Bella Escape Death at State's Hands

Chicago, April 13—(AP)—Friday the 13th, a favorite date for Illinois executions, has been cheated of three victims through court stays and a gubernatorial reprieve.

Charles Birger, the southern Illinois gangster, was one of those whose execution was to have taken place today but who lives because of last minute intervention by a Circuit Judge at Benton. Dr. Amati Rongetti, believed to have been the first man sentenced to death on a murder charge based on execution today because of court action.

Joseph Bella, who confessed slaying Mrs. Julia Flaherty of Danville, Ill., the mother of seven children, was the third of the trio of convicted Illinois murderers for whom Friday the 13th of April had been cheated at the Chester state penitentiary when a reprieve until May 22 was issued by Governor Small. The reprieve was recommended by the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

First and Last.
Had there been no intervention, Bella would have been the first man in Illinois to die in the electric chair. Birger would have been the last to hang, his conviction having come before the law replacing the gallows with the chair became effective.

Dr. Dongetti, Chicago physician, also is under sentence to electrocution, execution of the sentence being held up until the State Supreme Court can rule on his appeal. The physician's attorney, William Scott Stewart, who also defended Russell Scott, the slayer, who cheated the gallows by suicide, himself is under sentence to jail for contempt as a result of activities in Rongetti's defense.

On Insanity Plea.
The stay of Birger, who was convicted of having directed the slaying of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, Ill., although not actually participating in it, was based on a plea that he has become insane since sentence was passed. A night session was held at Benton by Circuit Judge Miller in order to grant the stay of execution. Judge Miller set April 16 for hearing on the insanity petition.

A halter carried the news to Birger, nervously pacing his cell in the Benton jail.

"I'll see my babies again," he repeated over and over again.

Scaffold Completed.
The scaffold had been completed and given a final test yesterday.

An insanity plea likewise was the basis of the appeal in Bella's case. Although he pleaded guilty when brought to trial, the court ordered a jury trial, the jury recommending the supreme penalty.

Dr. Rongetti, Chicago physician, also is under sentence to death and entitled to his attorney's services.

REFUSES TO TALK.
Benton, Ill., April 13—(AP)—Charles Birger, condemned gang leader refused to talk today when State's Attorney Arlie O. Boswell of Williamson county interviewed him in jail here in regard to the murders of Lory L. Price, State Highway Patrolman, and his wife.

Boswell obtained permission for the interview from Circuit Judge Charles Miller.

"I don't want to talk about it now," Birger told the State's Attorney.

Boswell yesterday failed in an attempt to obtain a stay of execution from the state Board of Pardons and Paroles on the ground that Birger had offered to tell the "full story" of the Price murders, for which several Birger gangsters are under indictment.

Judge Miller explained today that the stay he granted Birger last night was mandatory under the law when a petition for an insanity hearing is presented.

Scores Escape Fire

Chicago, April 13—(AP)—Several hundred men and women employees escaped when fire started in a six-story factory building here today. Within a few minutes, another call was received, asking the man and car hunt to be withdrawn.

A stranger stepped into one of the Ashton garages and left orders for a mechanic to go to his car on the Lincoln Highway in the city and make repairs. The mechanic found a car answering the description and took it to the garage but was unable to locate any trouble. In the meantime, a traveling salesman had been parked the car taken by the mechanic discovered his machine had been taken and informed the authorities. The entire matter was soon adjusted after the call had been sent to the Sheriff's office at Dixon.

Two hundred other dogs had arrived from Kentucky, Virginia and other points in Tennessee to take their places in the kennels at Happy Valley. Governor Taylor's home, and be ready for the run tonight under old Limber's patriarchal guidance.

HEFLIN ATTACKS SMITH AGAIN ON RELIGIOUS ISSUE

Alabama Senator Injects Address on Floor Today

Washington, April 13—(AP)—Senator Hefflin of Alabama made another attack on Governor Smith of New York today in the Senate, charging that he was the head of the Roman Catholic political machine in America.

There are two standards in this country," Hefflin shouted to a full chamber and crowded galleries. "The Roman standard and the American standard. When they clash one must go down and it will not be the American standard."

Hefflin obtained the floor immediately after the Senate convened, but Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican leader, invoked the rule of the regular order of business and took him off his feet. But it was not long. A few minutes later a House bill was laid before the Senate and the Alabama announced that he would speak on that.

Curtis Overruled
After he had proceeded a little way, Senator Curtis again sought to invoke a rule to prevent the address, but was overruled by Vice President Dawes. The Kansas then reminded Hefflin that the Senate was to go into executive session at 3 p. m. and it was the desire to dispose of the naval appropriation bill first.

"The Senator's speech can just as well go over to some other day," Curtis said.

"Not this speech can't go over," Hefflin retorted. "Why is the Senator from Kansas so nervous about this thing?"

"The senator from Kansas is not nervous," Curtis returned. "Well he seemed to object to this speech being made," the Alabamian said.

Denies Any Interest
"The Senator from Kansas has no interest in anything," the Senator from Alabama may say," the Republican leader and presidential candidate replied.

"If the Senator had let me go on at the outset," Hefflin retorted "he would have saved himself a good deal of embarrassment in explaining his position here to his constituents."

Basing his address upon what he said had been a threat made against the people of the south by the Comptroller of the State of New York, Hefflin quoted the Comptroller as having said in a speech in Virginia that the northern Democrats would punish those of the south if they did not go along with Smith for the presidency by having their Congressmen vote against legislation of interest to the south.

Sees Many Tombstones
"They claim Arkansas has gone for Smith now," the Alabamian continued. "I say that it is against him to one and if the delegation is delivered to him there will be more political tombstones around here than you have ever seen."

"Scandal lurks in Iowa. The Smith campaign fund, the largest and most corrupt ever used, is putting this scandal out."

That brought Senator Steck, Democrat, Iowa, to his feet.

"I hope the Senator doesn't infer that the democrats in Iowa have been influenced by any fund on behalf of any candidate for President."

"If the senator wants to know my opinion," Hefflin replied, "I think money was used in Iowa, Oklahoma and everywhere they put their foot."

"I don't want to quarrel with the Senator," Steck said, "but I wish to assure him that money has not been spent, raised or expended in any way for either Smith or Meredith in Iowa. As a Democrat I deny that money was used either for investigation of campaign funds. Hefflin suggested that the investigators "call the Tammany before them, starting with Jimmy Walker."

"He is a smooth artist, the slickest eel in the pond," he said.

Gov't. Rests Case

Washington, April 13—(AP)—Blocked, temporarily at least, from going into two lines of evidence it had offered the government tentatively rested its case today against Harry P. Sinclair.

The evidence which Owen J. Roberts wanted to put into the record concerned the $25,000 Sinclair handed over to Albert F. Fall for a trip to Russia made by the former Cabinet officer, and the transaction between Fall and E. L. Doheny, Sr., lessee of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve.

Martin W. Littleton, for Sinclair, objected on the grounds that this evidence was not germane, and Justice Bailey took the question under advisement until Monday morning, then adjourned court over the week end.

COULDN'T TALK WITHOUT PAIN WITH NEURITIS

Lady Had Awful Affliction 5 Years; Case Seemed Hopeless; Gly-Cas Amazing.

"For 5 years awful neuritis had simply seemed all over me," Mrs. Ida Holdback, respected lady living at 311 E. Fairchild Ave., Danville, Ill., recently said in a remarkable statement about this new vegetable medical discovery, Gly-Cas, which the Gly-Cas man is now daily explaining to crowds of local men and women at Campbell's White Cross Pharmacy, Dixon.

"The awful pain went from one part of my body to another," Mrs. Holdback states. "One time it effected my face. I could not eat or drink without awful pain and would cry from the misery until people across the street could hear me. I took medicine from a dozen different apothecaries, tried every advertised neuritis remedy and all failed me and I was so discouraged, suffering agony almost every minute. When a friend told me to see me, I could not even talk to her without awful pain and then she advised me to try that wonderful new Gly-Cas. My husband got me 6 boxes of Gly-Cas and I began taking it and just 4 weeks later I went up town and did my shopping. I met so many people I knew and they could hardly believe it was me. They wanted to know what I was taking and I told them this new Gly-Cas. My friends knew how I'd suffered and then to find me up town—they could hardly believe their eyes. I tell you, I am free from all those old neuritis pains now. I am still taking Gly-Cas but I feel fine. I know just dozens of people who have got relief through taking this medicine. I recommend Gly-Cas everywhere I go."

The Gly-Cas Man is at Campbell's White Cross Pharmacy, Dixon, and is daily meeting the public and explaining this amazing new vegetable medical discovery. Free samples given.—Adv.

PLANE HEARD OVER TOWN IN NOVA SCOTIA

man, said he heard the plane for five minutes while working here but could not see it. The weather was clear. Both Captain Barkhouse and Mr. Patterson said no other plane was known to be operating in the district.

Kingsport is on the west shore of Minas Basin, on the north coast of Nova Scotia, four miles from Canning. It is a rail point. It is about 500 miles from New York in an air line.

The sighting at 9:30 A. M. Eastern Standard time, would mean that the plane, if the "Bremen" was very nearly on both course and time for her flight to Mitchell Field, New York.

Aviators believed that the monoplane would have ample fuel left for the balance of the flight. It would face a westerly wind but clear weather over most of the remaining distance.

NO PLANES THERE
Ottawa, April 13—(AP)—(By the Canadian Press) Officials of the air force here stated today that so far as they knew no Canadian plane is in the air in the vicinity of Kingsport.

CROWD GROANED
Mitchel Field, N. Y., April 13—A crowd of about 1,000 persons broke into cheers and rushed the police lines guarding the flying field this morning when a plane the watchers believed to be the trans-Atlantic "Bremen" swooped to ground.

When the plane proved to be the Junkers C-38, sister ship of the Bremen, and to have arrived from Curtis Field, one mile away, the crowd groaned and retreated from the field.

The crowds began gathering early and by eight o'clock the road along the edge of the field was crowded. The weather was perfect with sunny skies and a fresh westerly breeze, the optimism was general.

The "Bremen" was not seriously expected for several hours, but the watchers scanned the skies ceaselessly. Because of the fine weather a large crowd was anticipated at the field and 500 soldiers were assigned to police duty. Besides this fifty patrolmen of the Nassau county police and 24 motorcycle police were on duty.

The Junkers C-38 was piloted from Curtis Field by Fred Melchior, representing the Junkers firm in America.

Hertha and Erhardt Junkers, daughter and son of the manufacturer, were passengers and planned to go aloft to meet the Bremen if any word should be received that it was approaching.

The C-38 is owned by the German Company and is the only Junkers kept in this country. But for paint and markings it is precisely like the "Bremen."

Shortly after midnight this morning the plane was due to make a landing, either at New Foundland, or Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, should its course be a bit further south. The early morning hours passed without her being reported. But this gave no cause for alarm.

Wings Were Coated
Only an unforeseen accident to the plane's single motor was regarded as standing between the flyers and success. When the plane was last sighted clearing Ireland and headed over the sea the motor was performing perfectly. The plane's wings were coated with an anti-freeze solution to prevent weighing down by ice.

The trio aboard presumably were doggedly sticking to their tasks. Captain Hermann Koehl, German war flyer, and Colonel James Fitzmaurice, Commandant of the Irish Free State air force, taking the controls alternately at four hour intervals and Baron Ehrenfried Gunther Von Huenefeld, sponsor, steadily pumping the fuel for the motor.

Koehl Is Capable
If any man could bring the "Bremen" through the dangers of the Atlantic crossing it was felt that Captain Koehl could do so. He is known in Germany as the best night flyer there, a man of cool head and instinctive knowledge of the air, who can fly for hours by instruments, that most difficult test of a pilot.

Under him, Junkers mechanics during the wait at Baldonnel had constantly gone over the plane and engine, making sure that the machine was always ready, always dependable. He had regarded ice forming on the wings as the most perilous hazard to be faced and had prepared against it by having them coated with a solution of paraffin to prevent freezing, and weighting down of the plane.

Colonel Fitzmaurice approached the flight early and nonchalantly. "We are not afraid to come back again," he said. "I don't go in for this do or die stuff. We will fight storms, but if we can't get through we will come home."

Made Preparation
In Berlin Professor Hugo Junkers, head of the company that made the "Bremen" said the flyers faced big risks "but with cool calculation have made preparations as far as present means permit."

Commander Richard E. Byrd in New York expressed confidence in the flyers and hope for their success. "The 'Bremen' carries no lifesaving apparatus and has neither life buoys or wireless aboard. The plane has no pontoons and should it descend to sea, experts said, the all-metal construction provides practically no buoyancy. Its whole fate rests on the roaring motor."

N. Y. PLANS WELCOME
New York, April 13—(AP)—A typical New York welcome was planned today for the three occupants of the German monoplane "Bremen."

Mayor James J. Walker, his reception committee headed by Grover Whalen, heads of German-American and Irish-American societies, the German Consul General and hundreds of private citizens arranged to be at Mitchell Field to greet the flyers. It was arranged that once the "Bremen" landed Capt. Koehl, Col. James Fitzmaurice and Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld would be taken to a nearby hotel for food and a brief rest before starting for the city. Then would come the familiar paper "snow storm"—typical of a New York welcome.

Fred Melchior, chief pilot for the Junkers Corporation which built the "Bremen" was standing by at Mitchell Field to take the air in a sister ship to the trans-Atlantic plane. He planned to meet the "Bremen" in the clouds, and guide her to the spot where she would land.

With him was Fraulein Hertha Junkers, daughter of Hugo Junkers, head of the corporation.

Major Reynolds, Commandant of the field, ordered that the landing area be cleared and kept clear until the "Bremen" landed. Soldiers and police were detailed to the job. At 4 A. M. the "Blinker" lights were turned on, flashing through the dark to outline the field in case the "Bremen" should outrun the calculations and arrive ahead of schedule.

Prairieville Social Circle Held Meeting

Members of the Prairieville Social Circle who met Wednesday in the church parlors at Prairieville report an enjoyable time. The day was spent in sewing rugs for rugs and making comforts. Meeting the many calls for needy families this winter has exhausted the supply of these articles. Much merriment accompanied the usual picnic dinner at noon. Owing to the nature of the work it was decided during the business meeting to hold the next meeting in two weeks at the same place. Thank you cards were read from families receiving flowers since the last meeting. All members and others who are anxious to assist in this work are urged to attend the next meeting.

Unity Guild Meeting Thursday Enjoyed

The members of the Unity Guild held a pleasant all day meeting Thursday with Mrs. A. G. Burnham with a picnic dinner which was much enjoyed at noon. The hostess had her home beautifully decorated with pink roses.
After dinner a short business session was held. The main feature of the afternoon was the interesting article read by Mrs. J. L. Hartwell, the title being, "The Man Who Knew Coolidge," by Sinclair Lewis.
Mrs. J. L. Hartwell will entertain the Guild at its May meeting.

CREPE DE CHINE NOW BATHING SUIT FABRIC—

Paris—(AP)—White crepe de chine bathing suits are among Paris' newest efforts.
They are not the "don't go near the water" type of swimming suit, for all are of rubberized silk. Dressmakers design them for actual bathing purposes.
Mme. Alvine Popesco, Parisian actress, has ordered a white silk Jenny bathing costume with a matching cape of white rubberized crepe de chine lined with scarlet. The cape is the length of the one piece swimming suit.

TENNIS FROCKS MADE OF WASHABLE SILK—

Paris—(AP)—A new simple tennis dress is a sleeveless model of heavy washable silk or a new Rodier fabric which looks like a coarse linen weave but it is in reality pure silk.
The frocks are one piece with pleated skirts, narrow belts and generously low necks which prevent the sunburn mark from being too apparent when a moderately low evening dress is worn.

GOLDEN RULE CIRCLE TO MEET MONDAY—

The Golden Rule Circle of Grace Evangelical church will meet Monday evening with Mrs. Vernon Schrock, 833 North Ottawa avenue.

Pointers for Parents

The happier a child is, the better his behavior will be.

A well-regulated, routine life for a child is essential to his physical and mental welfare.

Regular habits can be formed only if the child learns from experience that he is to do the same thing every day at the same hour.

It is only after the habit has become well established that we can afford to deviate from our charted course.

Even than it is with more or less danger that we introduce exceptions, for with each deviation from the routine come new interests and emotional satisfactions, which in themselves are the driving forces for every new habit. Thus we form the habit of irregularity.

Laziness is a symptom, not a disease. It may have a physical cause; it may have an intellectual basis; it may be an expression of emotional disturbance.

How much iron will be contained in a serving of vegetables depends to a large extent on the method of preparation. It will all be conserved if the vegetables can be served raw, steamed or baked, or cooked in a waterless cooker; little will be lost if the vegetable is boiled in a small amount of water, and the juice used in soups or gravies. One-half to three-fourths of the iron content of vegetables may be lost if the vegetables are cooked in much water and the water discarded.

Palmyra Mutual Aid Society Meeting

The Palmyra Mutual Aid Society met in an all day meeting Wednesday, April 11, in the basement of the Sugar Grove church.

After dinner the business meeting was called to order by the President. The "Lord's Prayer" being repeated by all, then the president read the Scripture Lesson. The Secretary and Treasurer reports were read and approved. Roll was then called. Mrs. Oscar Buhler read a paper on "Doing Up Curtains," which was enjoyed by all. The Society accepted an invitation to meet in two weeks with Mrs. Fred Drew, Route 5.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

The bill reported to the Senate a few days ago by Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, which would give wives and unmarried children of aliens already in this country first preference in the quota is one of the most humane and necessary bills introduced in a long time.

Social workers in every city say that the shame of America is the tragedies of our alien residents and even naturalized citizens who come to this country full of hope and eagerness to provide the wherewithal for their families to come to them, only to learn when it is too late that the quota may keep their wives and children away from them for such long years that the life here and the lives left behind are wrecked before they are reunited.

We can hardly clear our own skirts by asking why they weren't told the truth about the quota when they bought their tickets in the homeland.

JUST ANY BABY

Siamese twins were born not long ago to Mrs. Frank Keller of Marseilles, Ill. One baby seemed normal, and a blood stream flowed through the body of the other though its heart did not beat. The babies were "packed" in a box with blankets and hot water bottles and carried to the nearest hospital where they were cut asunder in order that the living baby might have a chance.

And there isn't a doubt in the world that Mrs. Keller grieved as much for the dead "freak" baby as she would if it had been normal. This instinctive mother love is why "defectives" will never be weeded from the world of the living, as science demands. Perhaps "blind instinct" is wiser here than science.

SHE WASN'T TOLD

Two weeks after their marriage the bride of a certain university student sued her young husband for divorce. She claimed that when she married she took it for granted that they would have their own home, and was amazed when the groom sent her home to live and never gave her a penny for support.

Evidently the groom forgot to tell her that he believed in "companionate marriage." By the way, we have heard so much from youth as to why this form of marriage is the only kind that we have heard little from their elders. Wonder how the elders like the economic solution of marriage on the part of the bridegroom? Isn't it just the old story of "traveling light" at the expense of the packhorse?

Announcements of Three Weddings in News from Rochelle

(Telegraph Special Service)
Rochelle—Announcement is made of the marriage of Martin J. Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunn, to Miss Mary Patyk of Chicago, which occurred at St. Patrick's church Tuesday morning. Nuptial high mass was read at 7:30 by Rev. Father O'Brien. The music incidental to the ceremony was sung by Mrs. Charles Kilday and Mrs. George O'Brien, with Mrs. Frank Kelly presiding at the organ. Charles Dunn, Jr., and Miss Loretta Donovan, of Rochelle, attended the bridal couple.

The bride was charming in a rose colored gown with hat and slippers to match, while the bridesmaid wore a black and white ensemble suit. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's parents. Spring flowers tastefully decorated the table and the Dunn home. Following congratulations and well wishes, the newly-weds left on a wedding trip. On their return they will make their home on a farm two and a half miles south of Rochelle.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Ethel Lazer Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Lazer, to Benjamin G. Rothschild, of Coral Gables, Fla. The marriage was solemnized in Greenwich, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cawley announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Grace E. to Harold Kirby, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Kirby, of Steward, the ceremony occurring at St. Patrick's church Monday morning, April ninth, at six o'clock. The low mass service which was witnessed by relatives and friends was read by Rev. Fr. Thomas O'Brien, of Rochelle. The program of nuptial music included a vocal solo, "I Love You Truly," by Miss Mabel Herrmann, with Miss Gertrude Kennedy presiding at the organ. Lohengrin Wedding March was played as the bridal party entered the church, and Handel's "Largo" was played during the ceremony. Mendelssohn's Wedding March concluded the group of musical numbers. The bride was charming in a frock of French blue trimmed with lace and she wore a picture hat which harmonized. Her bouquet was one of roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Mary Kirby, of Kankakee, as bridesmaid, wore orchid with a corsage of sweet peas and valley lilies, and Mrs. Helen Kirby, of Amboy, matron of French women have refused to take the pyjama suits seriously, considering them novelties presented for wear by the more daring visitors to beach resorts but the models are said to have a quick sale with American buyers.

Beauty Secrets of Galli-Curci

By ALMETIA GALLI-CURCI.

The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world, therefore it has all the more need to be attractive. A well-kept hand, however, is an attractive hand, irrespective of shape, though the comelier, of course, the better. Put cold cream on the nails every night, then you will have no hangnails; cut the toenails, short and square, thus avoiding ingrowing ones; clean under the nails with a bit of cotton and cold cream put on an orange stick; do not use too highly colored nail polish, but that giving a natural luster; long, exaggerated nails are to my mind not only clawlike, but unrefined.

Massaging the feet at night with cold cream is good for the bones and relieves tiredness. But no cold cream or any other medium will relieve the woman who persists in wearing shoes which cramp the toes. Cold cream put on at night is also vastly improving to the hands and elbows, keeping the latter free from callous discolorations.

In hot baths I am a firm believer, but not in the violent shock of cold ones. Always I take my bath at night, not remaining too long, for that is enervating; by morning, pores are closed, and motion keeps one warm. Rarely, if ever, do I have a cold, but lying over the side of the bed and letting the head hang down is good for it; and general benefit comes from allowing blood to go to the head, face and neck by this plan.

Anything but a padding of flesh! And anything but taking reducing medicine, which is terrible, eat less and exercise more. I am not an admirer of the boyish figure, for it is not feminine. I believe in curves that hide the angles. It is quite possible to fully satisfy appetite, and still retain one's figure.

This is my diet, and I get through the hardest kind of a season of concert and opera without fatigue and in my normal weight, which never varies; I eat nuts instead of meat; eggs, sometimes; vegetables, plenty of milk, fruit, and fruit juices; but no

WOMAN RUNS HOTEL FOR CAPITAL WORKERS—

Washington—(AP)—Miss Mary A. Linsley is in complete charge of a big city hotel. She is, perhaps, the only woman in such a position.

She is the manager of the Grace Dodge hotel, which was built by the Y. W. C. A. in war time to meet the housing problems of women workers in Washington. Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., first vice president of the national Y. W. C. A. and chairman of the hotel's board of directors, said recently the hotel has continued its operation "because it is a demonstration of a practical business success run with the highest ideals."

Miss Linsley formerly was a hospital dietitian in New York and Chicago, and during the war she was a Red Cross nurse overseas.

CLUBS ISSUE GUIDE ON HOME EQUIPMENT—

Washington—(AP)—The cook book has a new companion in the housewife's library—the home equipment primer, published by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The primer suggests what labor and time saving devices may be installed in various homes, the suggestions depending on the public utilities available to the home.

Defects in household equipment have been determined by the federation in a survey of 8,000,000 urban and 40,000 rural homes. The federation already has made a campaign for correction of the defects.

The primer tells what science and industry offer to relieve the drudgery of the housewife and to protect the health of her family, explains the range of equipment and gives the types of prices for the guidance of prospective purchasers.

RIOT OF COLOR FORSEEN IN ADVANCE SHOE STYLES—

Lynn, Mass.—(AP)—Indian prints and block printed linens will predominate in the fabrics, while soft, rich hues of blue, green, maize, beige, Indian yellows, jade and some shades of red will meet the lady's shoe style requirements this summer. This is the advance information that comes from the designers of the shoe factories here.

Imitation reptile shoes are believed to be on the wane, but the manufacturers are anticipating an increased demand for the real thing in snake and lizard skin shoes. White shoes will be in greater demand this summer than for many seasons past, they believe.

The smartest shoes will have French lines, short foreparts, and high arches for dress wear, but the sports shoes will be distinctly American with stream lines suggesting automobiles or angular wing effects, revealing the "airplane influence."

MARRIED WOMEN WORKING.

You still hear, now and then, repetitions of the arguments that raged so furiously a few years ago—whether or not married women should work outside the home.

Now Miss Mary Anderson, head of the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, announces that there are 2,000,000 married women gainfully employed in the United States, she asserts that all but a very few of them are working because they have to and not because they want to.

"Very few women choose to carry two jobs for the pleasure of doing it," says Miss Anderson. "Only about two per cent of the employed married women work for luxuries or a career."

One concludes that the issue isn't a very live one, after all. Most women, when they get married, prefer to stay at home, unless financial conditions compel them to go to work. That, at least, is what one infers from Miss Anderson's statement.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK

"Oh, my," cried Scouty, "look up there. Poor Clowny's speeding through the air. That great big bird is stealing him. I fear he'll never come back. To Clowny it may be a thrill to be picked up in some bird's bill, but I'd be mighty scared. Just look, he surely is real black."

Then Copy said, "What can we do to help poor Clowny? Wish I knew. That bird will soon be out of sight and we'll be left behind. Let's look and find the butcher man, 'cause he will help us if he can. At least if we are trying to help 'twill somewhat ease my mind."

So off they started, down a hill, all closely watching Clowny till the monstrous bird that carried him flew near a mountain top. "Oh, gee," yelled Copy Tinymite, "the bird has now flown out of sight. My, wouldn't it be terrible if he'd let Clowny drop."

But Clowny didn't drop. Oh, no! The big bird didn't let him go. He held him tightly in his claws and flew on through the air. "Where are we going?" Clowny cried. "Why did you take me on this ride? You left the others all behind. I wish I was back there."

And then the big bird circled round and dropped down nearer to the ground. A mountain loomed up not far off. The bird sailed out that way. "Please land me on the mountain side. I'm getting tired," we Clowny cried. "Twas fun to ride with you, but I have had enough today."

The queer bird seemed to understand. He swooped right down where he could land. Then Clowny got a big surprise, and loudly cried, "Hurrah! The bird has done his very best to be real kind." 'Twas in a nest of little birds he landed. Then the big bird flew away.

The Tinymites meet a queer man in the next story.

MARYE and MOM Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

My dear Marye:

I think you are very foolish to believe that memories of past loves are treasures. You shouldn't be thinking of any man but your husband. And comparing him with a former sweetheart whom you saw only under favorable circumstances is most unfair. It can easily grow into a habit that will be beyond your control and become a serious detriment to your happiness.

And surely you must know that as the novelty of marriage wears off comradeship takes its place. You aren't old enough to appreciate what a wonderful blessing true comradeship is, Marye dear, but I hope you will not remain blind to it as long as most people do.

It comes about so naturally between married couples and is so taken for granted that it is rarely appreciated at its real worth. It is sweet to have someone in whom you can confide with perfect trust, someone you can depend upon as a companion.

There will be bleak moments in your marriage, I suppose, when the commonplace features of it disappoint you, but if you will weigh the happier side against the other you will stop sighing for past romances. I know you've never been lonely, that you didn't need marriage to provide a companion. You were very fortunate in having a great many friends, but if you hadn't married you would have found, as you grew older, that you lacked someone you could depend upon at practically all times. Friends have a way of failing us oftener than the one we are married to. That is only natural as their lives are not bound up with ours.

But sometimes this constant companionship becomes a bore to those who do not value it. I feel sorry for such persons as they are missing far more than they know in failing to see that in most cases they would be incomplete if they were separated from husband or wife.

I know I wouldn't trade the bond that exists between your father and myself for all the thrills anyone can get from remembering old lovers. If you need that sort of thing to help you over the rough spots of marriage it is because you are overlooking the greatest privilege of being married.

Don't try to hang on to the glamour of the honeymoon, Marye, or let yourself be blinded by little offenses to your esthetic taste. There's something more solid to a happy marriage. Companionship. But some people never appreciate it. I hope you will not be one of them.

Dearest love,

MOM.

Sugar and Smoke

Headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 400 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago.)

Tremendous increase in the use of tobacco has revived the question "Is the use of tobacco harmful?"

Despite the publication of studies by competent and incompetent observers the public mind has reached no conclusion; it is bewildered by conflicting reports.

All a smoker need do to justify his opposition is to read a report of the entirely harmless effect and the grateful influence of tobacco on one's sensibilities.

All an anti need do, to fortify his position, is to read a report which proves the destructive influence on man's mentality, morals, and physical being.

One group deprecates the habit among men, women, and children and ascribes the increase of feeble-mindedness and mental lethargy to it. Another points to the widespread use of tobacco and the lack of cases of injury from it. A third group just smokes and takes comfort and worries not at all.

No attempt will here be made to discuss the general subject of tobacco effects. It is too big a subject for one person or a few words.

This paper will discuss the effect of tobacco using on the eyesight—and that in a restricted sense. Is the use of tobacco ever injurious to eyesight? The answer to this question is "Yes." For there is a class which should be very cautious in tobacco using. The persons who compose this class are diabetics and those in a pre-diabetic stage, by which we mean

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

BY AHERNS

having a higher than normal blood-sugar content.

Diabetics should avoid the excessive use of tobacco; it is dangerous to their eyesight.

This is a proven fact and is known to ophthalmologists. The bad effect of tobacco on sight is called tobacco amblyopia. Amblyopia means dimness of vision and ranges in degree from disturbance to actual blindness. It discovered early most cases can be cleared by correcting the habit and giving proper remedies.

Others than diabetics may suffer from tobacco amblyopia but diabetics are especially susceptible. Diabetics are subject to eyesight trouble separate and apart from any tobacco effects and the two may co-exist in the same eye, but one can even then differentiate the tobacco from the other sight defect.

Thus too much sugar (diabetes) may cause loss of eyesight; too much tobacco may cause loss of eyesight; and sugar and tobacco together constitute a special eyesight hazard. Diabetics, watch your step in the use of tobacco!

Blindfolded . . . in scientific test of leading Cigarettes, Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt selects OLD GOLD

MRS. REGINALD C. VANDERBILT

"I wonder if one can really tell the difference, when blindfolded," was my first thought when invited to make this test.

"After smoking the four brands, as they were handed to me one after another, I discovered there was one that was noticeably smoother than the others and richer in taste.

"This proved to be an OLD GOLD. I hope I shall be able to buy them in Paris . . . they are surprisingly free from any trace of throat irritation and have a delightful aroma which to me is very important."

How Test Was Made

Mrs. Vanderbilt was blindfolded, and, in the presence of two responsible witnesses, was given one each of the four leading cigarettes to smoke. . . . To clear the taste, coffee was served before each cigarette. . . . Mrs. Vanderbilt was unaware of the identity of these cigarettes during test. . . . After smoking the four cigarettes, Mrs. Vanderbilt was asked to designate by number her choice. . . . She immediately replied: "Number 3" . . . which was OLD GOLD.

OLD ALEX HERO OF SECOND DAY OF BIG SEASON

Veteran, 40, Proved Complete Master of Champions

(BY THE AP)

Grover Cleveland Alexander still wears with dignity the appellation of "Alex the Great."

The burden of 41 summers, not to mention winters, apparently rests lightly upon the broad shoulders of this old knight of the baseball wars. Entering upon his 16th major league season, he turned back the champion Pirates without a run at St. Louis yesterday while his Cardinal mates triumphed by 5 to 0.

Alexander's effectiveness in keeping the Corsairs' seven singles scattered puts a more threatening aspect on the Cardinal pennant hopes. Figuring exhibition performances in the spring training exercises, it marked nineteen scoreless innings for the veteran.

Frankie Frisch, came in for his share of honors in making the Buccaneers walk the plank by producing his second home run in as many days.

Opposing Old Alex on the hill was Burrell Grimes who was back in Pittsburgh harness after an absence of ten years during which time he played with the Robins and Giants.

Cubs Jolted Again

The Cincinnati Redlegs jolted the Chicago Cubs for the second consecutive day, this time by 9 to 3, a six-run flurry in the eighth inning breaking a tie. With the bases loaded and two down in the eighth, English bumbled in fielding Kelly's roller allowing a run to trickle in. Before the Bruins recovered their poise, the Warriors had piled on five more tallies to put the game on ice.

Although the experts relegated the St. Louis Browns to the lowest sub-way level of the American League circuit, they broke out in typical Missouriian manner with another decision over the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 2, which enabled them to share the crest for another day at least with the Yanks and Indians.

Making his debut with the Browns, Jack Ogden hurled a steady game against four opposing twirlers, Whitehill, Carroll, Stoner and Smith. Carroll blew up in the eighth, five runs crossing the plate.

The Chicago White Sox outthit the Indians but dropped another engagement to Cleveland by 2 to 1. Langford's three-bagger with Jamieson on base in the sixth inning developing what proved to be the margin of victory. Joe Shaute held the hits off his delivery widely distributed and received perfect support.

Cold and wet grounds forced idleness upon the other big league out-fits.

A JIM-DANDY NICKEL CIGAR

Made with Ripe Tobacco and Ripe Experience

When good tobacco and thirty years of cigar-making experience get together, you're pretty sure of a good smoke. But when combined in a cigar you can buy for a nickel, man, you've found something!

Here it is: Havana Ribbon. Value? Count back over the years—over the old-time purchasing power of a five-cent piece. Smoke a Havana Ribbon. You'll find your nickel buys a better cigar than it ever bought.

Sheer popularity has done it. Immense production enables the use of tobacco usually considered too expensive for five-cent cigars. Havana Ribbon is made entirely of ripe tobacco—the choice middle leaves of the plant. No bitter under-ripe nor "flat" over-ripe leaves. Pure, fragrant, mellow-mild flavor of tobacco at its best. Long filler, too—no "cuttings" or short ends.

Also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

Reisel Favorite to #### Win Billiard Tourney

Chicago, April 13—(AP)—Otto Reisel of Philadelphia was favored to retain his title as the national three cushion billiard tournament neared conclusion today.

While deadlocked for first place with Willie Hoppe of New York and John Layton of St. Louis, with five wins and two defeats the champion appeared to have the easiest schedule for his two remaining matches.

He has yet to meet Layton and the erratic Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago who has been defeated four times in eight matches. Layton must play Hoppe in addition to Reisel, while Hoppe has beside the Layton game another difficult match against the sharpshooting Gus Copulos of Detroit. Copulos, considered out of championship consideration with five wins and three losses, has been proving the nemesis of the tournament.

Hoppe exhibited his strategy and old time mastery yesterday in defeating Allen Hall of St. Louis, 50 to 41. His timing was excellent and his safety shots hard to match.

Today's pairings: Layton vs. Reisel; Hall vs. Earl Lookabaugh, Chicago; and Hoppe vs. Copulos.

New York, April 13—(AP)—The tussle of the talent for places on this year's American Olympic track and field team will be on from coast to coast in short order. It is already under way in the balmy climes of the Pacific Coast while the eastern and middle western stars will have their first big outdoor tests in the great relay carnivals the end of this month at Pennsylvania and Drake Universities.

If present prospects mean anything the east will fill nearly half the ranks of the track and field team. Ninety places will be available and well qualified observers figure that 44 of these will be grabbed off by eastern performers.

The same calculations allot 22 places to the middle west, 14 to the Pacific Coast, six to the southwest and four to the south.

From this outpost it appears the

CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENT TAKE VARIOUS MEANS

Hoover Has the Most Extensive Organization Today

Washington, April 12—(AP)—Proving that even in politics there is more than one way to do things, the dozen or more presidential candidates, with few exceptions, are waging their campaigns to get into the White House along different lines.

Of the Republicans, Hoover has the most extensive organization. He has volunteers at work in every state, some of them astute politicians, others new at the game.

Lowden also has a far-flung organization, but not as much as Hoover's. Curtis of Kansas, who is conducting a less active campaign, has his support organized in a few strategic states, and on a still smaller scale are the campaign machines of other republican aspirants, including the quadrennial crop of "favorite sons."

In the democratic ranks, Smith adherents have been at work, many of them for months, lining up support for the New York Governor. Reed of Missouri, alone, of all republican and democratic aspirants, has done any extensive stumping, although George of Georgia has gone into the South to deliver several speeches.

Walsh Inactive

Walsh of Montana, like his two Democratic colleagues in the Senate, has supporters, most of them unorganized, in various states, but thus far he has made no move toward active campaigning or perfecting an organization. Each in his own way, the various democratic "favorite sons" are laying their convention plans, most of them content to lay back and take advantage of any breaks at Houston.

In one respect, at least, Secretary Hoover's campaign organization is unique. He has no officially depreciable board. A board of strategy, made up of close friends who know a thing or two about politics, is directing maneuvers, with "Jim" Good, once a member of Congress from the Iowa district where Hoover was born, as much of a manager as the Commerce Secretary intends to have.

Smith's Friends Work

Smith, who like Hoover, is in the lead so far as actual delegates lined up to date are concerned, also is without a campaign manager. His candidacy is in the hands of a group of friends, who have extended their missionary efforts into every state in the Union.

Smith and Hoover have done no active campaigning, and probably will not do so before the June conventions. Neither has Lowden, who, like Smith, has no headquarters here. He is on his Illinois farm, leaving the task of lining up delegates to Clarence Buck of Chicago, who as a campaign manager has a roving assignment.

Friends of Senator Curtis have opened headquarters for him in New York, but they have none here. Neither have the supporters of Norris, Watson, Goff of West Virginia, Walsh, George, or any of the others who are in the presidential race.

Club Committee for Repeal Dry Statute

New York, April 12—(AP)—The National Affairs committee of the National Republican club today stood committed to repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The committee, in executive session yesterday, adopted a resolution calling for incorporation in the party platform of a plank advocating repeal of the amendment. The resolution will be submitted to the full membership of the club next Tuesday night. If it is adopted, its sponsors hope to have it presented to the national convention by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

The viva voce vote of the measure was so overwhelmingly in its favor that no division was called for. Benjamin L. Fairchild, chairman of the committee, said that some opposition was voiced before the vote was taken but that the general sentiment was for adoption.

He predicted that the club also would adopt the resolution by a large majority, but opponents of the measure looked for a strong opposition vote.

The opposition was led by Richard

W. Lawrence, incoming president of the club, who is head of the Hoover forces in New York.

The National Republican Club has about 2000 members living in all parts of the country, 1000 of which are residents of New York. President Coolidge is an honorary President and on its roster are Herbert Hoover, Vice President Dawes and Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Ruckman left two children, besides a host of friends to mourn his loss, a daughter, Mrs. Frank Hewitt of Steward, and a son Ralph Ruckman of Amboy. The deceased's wife passed away a number of years ago. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at the home, with Rev. F. W. Nazeene conducting the devotional and Rev. Warren Hutchinson delivering the funeral sermon. Rev. and Mrs. Hutchinson sang. Interment was in the Steward cemetery by the side of his wife. Many beautiful floral offerings spoke of the respect in which the deceased was held by the community. Mr. Ruckman was a member of the Methodist church of Steward, and a Modern Woodman many years. A number from out of town attended the funeral, among whom were Mr. J. H. Jorke and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Holderness of DeKalb.

OBITUARY

MRS. NANCY LINDEMAN

(Contributed)

Nancy Fritz was born on June 20, 1835, in Brothersvalley Township, Somerset County, Pa., and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice Burkett in Dixon on April 9, 1928, at the age of 92 years, 9 months and 19 days.

Shortly after her birth she was admitted to Church of Jesus Christ by baptism in the name of the Triune God in the Lutheran faith. Her early years were spent attending school near her home. Her religious training was likewise provided for and she was admitted as a communicant member of the Lutheran church by the rite of Confirmation. In the year 1851 the deceased came with her parents and other members of the family to South Dixon, where the family occupied the farm now occupied by Randall Green.

On March 18, 1858, at the age of 23 she was united in marriage to Harmon Lindeman in Dixon. The newly wedded couple settled on a farm one mile south of the St. James Church. This union was blessed by nine children, six of whom are now living: Mrs. Carl Lyndes, of Beatrice, Neb.; Mrs. Alice Burkett, Mrs. Luther Burkett, both of Dixon; Mrs. Mamie Graver of Kansas City, Mo.; Clinton Lindeman and Mr. Gilbert B. Lindeman, both of Dixon.

Our departed sister came to Dixon with her husband in 1898 and lived at her residence on Hennepin Ave. She lived to mourn her husband's death which came Feb. 17, 1901. In 1913 she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Alice Burkett where she remained until the end. The deceased enjoyed remarkably good health until five weeks ago when she suffered a fall resulting in a serious fracture of the hip. At times it appeared that she would recover, but her Heavenly Father willed it otherwise, and after much suffering called her home to a well-deserved rest with the faithful of all generations in the Church Triumphant.

Nancy Lindeman was a charter member of this church, of the Ladies' Aid, and the Missionary Society. Her interest, desire to the church's betterment, often accomplishing single-handed projects which otherwise would take a group of people to perform. Her record as a member stands without parallel in the history of our congregation. Hers was a life in the service of the Lord's vineyard from baptism until she celebrated Holy Communion with her Lord on her death-bed.

She was afforded the great pleasure of participating in the 50th anniversary celebration last year, the honorable mention accorded her was received by her in her modest way so characteristic of her. She was faithful to her husband, to her family, faithful to her friends, faithful to her Lord and His Church and now receives the crown of life, prepared for them that love the Lord and their fellow-men. No greater tribute can be paid to any human being. Servant of God, well done! Thy glorious warfare's past,

The battle's fought, the race is won, And thou art crowned at last.

Besides the above named children, many grandchildren and great-grandchildren and friends remain to mourn her passing.

Text—Job 5, 26—"Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season." Psalms 116, 15. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints."

Choir of Carthage College is Coming

The Carthage College Choir which will sing at St. Paul's Lutheran church in this city next Tuesday at 7:30 P. M., is a musical organization composed of thirty-eight trained singers, all students at Carthage College, Carthage, Ill. For several years Carthage has been sending out a Male Glee Club and a Ladies' Choir, both of which have established reputations placing them far above the average among organizations of this type. During the summer of 1927 the College administration decided to attempt a higher type of musical organization and the result was this choir.

The choir sings a cappella, or without accompaniment, recognized as the most beautiful and artistic manner of rendering vocal music. Intense practice under the efficient and inspiring tutelage of Director Elmer Hanke has produced remarkable results. Two pre-season concerts, one at Quincy, Ill., and the other at Hamilton, Ill., have been received with much favorable comment. The choir sings nothing but sacred music; it being one of the immediate aims of the choir to place this particular type of music in the foreground.

The first tour of the Carthage College Choir has been designated as a Good Will tour by college authorities. The college administration wishes to express its gratitude for the wonderful work done by the Lutheran people throughout this territory and is relying entirely on the good will and generosity of the audiences to reimburse them for the expense connected with the tour.

The only British nobleman of American ancestry is William Waldorf, Viscount Astor, a direct descendant of John Jacob Astor.

11:15 A. M. Worship. The subject of the sermon will be "Walking with the Risen Lord." Everyone welcome.

It is with profound regret that we announce the passing of Mrs. Nancy Lindeman, who departed this life the day after Easter. No single member has been any more faithful, or has contributed in so many ways toward the building up and maintenance of the church than she. Though we sadly miss her, we are glad that she has been delivered from her suffering. She is happier in her home beyond the skies. The obituary appears in another issue.

Concert Well Rendered. In spite of much rain which fell on Good Friday afternoon and evening a good-sized and appreciative audience turned out to here the program by the Wartburg Male Quartette presented under the direction of Prof. C. F. Boess at the Immanuel Lutheran church of Amboy. This is evidence to show that Amboy has a taste for the better class of music.

The quartette sang "a capella" that is without any accompaniment. The numbers were well-chosen hymns both old and new, which are among the best liked of Lutheran hymns. The quartette sang with good attack and expression, as every hymn should be sung by a congregation. Because of the sacred character of the program they requested that no one applaud.

One violin selection was played by William Bartels, a member of the quartette. Though but of high high school age and a senior in the academy, Mr. Bartels showed excellent progress in mastering both tone quality and technique of the violin.

Prof. Boess played a group of five classical numbers on the piano, all difficult, from the great masters Chopin, Schubert, Bach and Beethoven. Playing entirely from memory Mr. Boess showed that he was a finished pianist.

Instead of encores the quartette repeated a number of songs requested by the audience.

The same program was again presented at the St. James Lutheran church to a large audience on Easter Sunday afternoon.

We hope that more programs of this kind can be presented in the future in Amboy.

DeKalb Girl Battled With Two Kidnapers

DeKalb, Ill., April 12—(AP)—Ruth McGaughey, 21, DeKalb county school teacher, hysterical and disheveled, stumbled into a farm house today to tell of a struggle against the advances of two men who forcibly took her from an escort last night near Sycamore.

The young woman collapsed before she could give a description of her captors. For hours she drove with the men over the roads of northern DeKalb county, struggling almost continuously against one of them and sometimes against both. She had not been attacked, according to word received here from the farm house which is near Burlington in Kane county.

Miss McGaughey was driving with Carl Sandstrom of Sycamore when kidnapped.

325-Mile Auto Race Replaces Grand Prize. Paris—(AP)—France's automobile classic, the Grand Prix, is dead but another one, open to all the world, takes its place.

It is a 325-mile race to be held at Comminges, July 1, the date originally set for the defunct Grand Prix, abandoned because it had become too much of a manufacturers' commercial stunt.

The new race is open to all "sport" cars, and many private owners are expected to enter.

FARM AID BILL PASSES SENATE; FACING A VETO

Almost Certain President Coolidge Will Refuse to Sign

Washington, Apr. 13—(AP)—Bearing a majority of 30 Senate votes in its favor, the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill rested today on the doorstep of the House, where early action is expected to send it to the White House. There an almost certain veto faces it for the second time.

Passed yesterday by the Senate by a vote of 53 to 23, as compared to the 47 to 39 sanction given it at the last session, the measure retained the controversial equalization fee which caused President Coolidge to veto the bill last year, principally on the belief that this provision was unconstitutional.

Should the President again return the measure to Congress without his approval, administration leaders in the Senate doubt whether it could be passed over the veto. They believe that with a full membership present a two-thirds majority could not be obtained.

Party lines and even state lines broke wide apart on the final vote and nine Senators shifted their positions of a year ago, eight changing from opposition to support of the bill.

The real showdown came on an amendment by Sackett, Republican, proposing elimination of the equalization fee by which funds would be raised from levies on commodities to help market surpluses and maintain prices at a higher level. The amendment was rejected 46 to 31.

The Senate also rejected, 64 to 5, the $600,000,000 direct subsidy bill which Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, had proposed as a substitute.

Some Provisions. As passed, the measure would provide loans to farm cooperatives and other marketing agencies from a revolving fund of $400,000,000 at a rate of four per cent. Should emergencies arise and the first remedy fail to meet the situation the equalization fee would be resorted to.

A Farm Board, appointed by the President with the consent of the tue for the McNary-Haugen measure.

Candidates' Votes. Of the Republican Presidential candidates present, three—Curtis of Kansas, Watson of Indiana, and Norris of Nebraska—voted for the bill, and two, Borah, of Idaho, and Goff, of West Virginia, voted against it. All five voted the same way last year.

Senator Fess of Ohio, who has figured prominently in the movement to draft President Coolidge, was among the opponents on the final roll call.

While none of the Democratic candidates were present, announcement was made that Senator Walsh of Montana, would have voted against and Senator George of Georgia for the bill. Senator Reed of Missouri, an opponent last session, was out of the city.

Cuban Growers Say Havana—(AP)—Cuban sugar cane growers have set out to prove to women of the United States that sugar is not a fat producer.

Much of the depression in the Cuban sugar industry and much of the decrease in demand is blamed upon American women, who in their efforts to remain or become thin have abstained from the crystals of the cane.

PRESIDENTIAL PORTRAITS

The Story of Herbert Hoover

EDITOR'S NOTE—This, the first of four articles describing Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, is the fourth in a series of Presidential Campaign Portraits written for The Telegraph and NEA Service by Robert Talley. The second article on Mr. Hoover will appear tomorrow.

BY ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

Washington, April 12—The world knows Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Flood Administrator Hoover, Food Administrator Hoover, Belgian Relief Commissioner Hoover, Flood Relief Director Hoover and a lot of other official Hoovers, but this story introduces plain Mr. Hoover.

Mr. Hoover, now out in the front as a presidential candidate, lives in a big house a few doors from the old S street mansion of Woodrow Wilson, who was his neighbor for several years. He is 54, muscular, does not play golf, has two sons—Allen, a junior at Leland Stanford, and Herbert Hoover, Jr., taking a postgraduate course in business administration at Harvard. He has recently become a grandfather, Herbert Hoover III having arrived on the scene only a few months ago. His one hobby is fishing.

His wife, Mrs. Lou Henry Hoover, is also a Leland Stanford graduate and an accomplished linguist. She speaks a number of languages, including Chinese. They were college sweethearts and each is the only one the other ever had.

By day, Secretary Hoover sits behind a big, flat-topped, old-fashioned desk at the Department of Commerce Building, puffing on a pipe that has seen better days. By night, Mr. Hoover entertains intimate friends at his home (he dodges formal social events whenever he can) or lies awake until past midnight reading detective stories.

George Akerson, Hoover's secretary, reveals that Hoover's favorite detective story author is S. S. Van Dine, whose famous series, "The Benson Murder Case" and "The Canary Murder Case," appeared serially in this paper. Hoover also likes biography. He has read Emil Ludwig's works, and when Ludwig was in Washington recently they talked for a long time in Hoover's office.

As an organizer, a do-er and a go-getter, Hoover is a genius, but as a politician he is a poor success. It is hard to imagine him as a campaigner. He shakes hands limply, usually talks with his eyes on the floor or while marking idly on a pad, looks sullen but is merely shy. If he ever slapped anybody on the back or laughed real loud, half of his office force probably would die of the shock.

Hoover approaches every question with the analytical mind of an engineer. Statistics, facts and problems are his meat.

Perhaps that is why he complains that most detective stories are dull because their so-called "mystery" plots are too easily fathomed by the reader.

Perhaps that is why, in addressing the Izaak Walton League, he said that there are caught in this country each year: "500,000,000 fish, divided amongst 120,000,000 people, which is not so much as you might think at first, for it is only 4.1 fish per person, and it includes the little ones as well, and each of us eat 1095 times a year."

Hoover is the busiest man in Washington and probably holds more important positions than any other man in the world.

In addition to being secretary of commerce he is president of the American Child Health Association; chairman of the American Relief Association Children's Fund; chairman of the Commission for Relief of Belgium; chairman of the St. Lawrence Waterway Commission; chairman of Better Homes in America; honorary president of the Izaak Walton League; member of the central committee of the American Red Cross and a trustee of Carnegie Institute and Stanford University.

In the past he has been president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers and has held dozens of other high positions, including that of chairman of the European Food Control and a member of the Allied Supreme Economic Council and the World War Debt Commission.

He has been granted honorary degrees for public service by 36 universities and colleges; holds eight gold medals from foreign governments, technical and educational societies and is an honorary citizen of Belgium, Finland, Poland and Estonia. The story goes that King George offered him a knighthood if he would become a citizen of Great Britain.

The life story of Herbert Clark Hoover begins with an orphan boy in rural Iowa, both his mother and father having died before he was eight years old. His father was a poor blacksmith, and to this day Hoover bears on his foot an ugly scar showing where he stepped on a red-hot iron when a barefoot boy.

The orphan was taken in by relatives, equally poor but honest and devout Quakers like his parents. Until he was 10, he toiled on an uncle's farm between Burlington and Cedar Rapids in Cedar county.

Hoover today tells of the old swimming hole under the willows down by the railroad bridge, of coasting down Cook's hill on sleds in icy winter, of catching rabbits in a figure-four trap and how, when fishing with a butcher string line and hook that cost 10 for a dime, the boys used to spit on the bait for "good luck."

"And there never was a better cook than Aunt Millie," Hoover says. "I have since eaten presumably the very best food in the world as well as the worst, but I am able to say now that if all the cooks of Iowa are up to Aunt Millie's standard—she's a dear old lady now, far along in years—then the gourmets of the world should leave Paris for Iowa, at least for Cedar county."

Fishing is today Hoover's greatest hobby. Lots of week-ends he camps down on Chesapeake bay, a short drive from Washington.

When the orphaned boy was 10, another uncle took him to Oregon where he was founding a Quaker colony. A land boom later attracted the uncle to Salem and young Hoover worked in his real estate office there.

In Salem, young Hoover joined the Quaker church, and even today he still holds his "birthright" (as the Quakers call it) and pays his dues there, although he attends a Quaker church in Washington.

Into the real estate office one day chanced a roving mining engineer—a sort of a Trader Horn—with an alluring story. Hoover listened and immediately he decided to become a mining engineer. He had saved $200 and with this he set out for Leland Stanford University, then recently opened, to work his way through.

It has been said that at Stanford Hoover earned extra money by waiting on tables and taking care of babies of various professors, but he did neither of these things—although he did nearly every other kind of job that could be imagined.

He organized a system of collecting and delivering the students' laundry. He became impresario in hiring lecturers and musicians to come from San Francisco to give concerts. He did clerical work in the college office as a third means of gaining revenue.

Once, it is recorded, Hoover and a student partner engaged Paderewski to give a concert. Paderewski's fee was $2000. As the concert was drawing to a close, the two boys discovered to their horror that they had just $400 less than that amount in the box office. Neither could borrow a cent. Then went to Paderewski and laid their predicament before him.

The great pianist was generous and probably amused. He told them to cut his commission, so that after all expenses had been paid the boys were able to realize a slight profit for themselves. It is said that gratitude for this kindly act was one of the reasons for Hoover's unusually energetic food relief work in Poland in the dark days right after the World War.

A beard got Herbert Hoover his first big job and started him on the road to wealth.

That story is one of the most interesting in the whole career of the Secretary of Commerce, now a candidate for the presidency.

Hoover had worked his way through Leland Stanford University—with an income derived from his laundry-gathering service, other private enterprises and vacation earnings—and graduated in engineering.

Leaving school, he worked as a laborer in a Sierra mine, to gain experience, before he got a job with Louis Janin, a famous mining engineer on the Pacific coast. Janin told Hoover he needed a clerk who could operate a typewriter and Hoover accepted the place. Then Hoover hurried to his lodgings to spend the next four days learning how to operate a typewriter.

Hoover did not remain a clerk very long. His ability as a mining engineer was pronounced and his reputation and income increased. For two years he traveled all over the west as an expert on Janin's staff. Janin recognized him as a budding genius and treated him accordingly.

In 1897, when the West Australian gold boom was at its height, a great London mining firm asked Janin to recommend to them an engineer capable to handle new properties for them. The salary was $7,500 a year. Janin picked Hoover and Hoover started for London to talk to his new bosses.

Janin had one worry, however. The conservative Britishers had insisted that their man be at least 35 years old. Janin, in his recommendation, had said that Hoover was just 33; he hardly felt he could add more than 10 years to the young man's age. So Hoover, en route to London, grew a beard.

On his arrival he was greeted by his new employer with the remark: "How remarkably you Americans keep your youth! You don't look a day over 25. How the devil do you do it?"

Into the rich West Australia mining region Hoover went, hunting for new mines and developing old ones. It was a desert country, barren and windswept, where water was found only in small springs that were miles apart. The temperature seldom went below 100, even at night.

Thousands of men were working feverishly. They lived in corrugated iron shacks, got along with little water to drink and none at all to wash in.

It was a long way from the home office and Hoover could not ask for advice or instructions when in doubt. It was up to him to decide every question for himself, and lose his job if he decided wrong.

After the ore had been found and a method of extracting it perfected, there still remained the task of organizing the mine and putting it on a systematic, business-like, dividend-producing basis. Rather a large order for a young man of 23; but Hoover succeeded so well that in two years he was famous throughout the mining world and was drawing a large salary.

Thus began Hoover's 20 years as a mining engineer in all parts of the world. He traveled far and wide—Australia, Russia, China, Korea, Burma, and other remote spots—installing American methods and machinery. He lived a rough, open life in jungles and deserts and built up a rugged constitution that today accounts for his excellent health at 54.

His wealth grew to a fortune and at 40—when the World War broke out—he turned his attention to it—he sold all his holdings, invested in securities, and retired from business to live on his income.

But the call of the engineer is still strong within him. Washington remembers that during the Food Administration days—when Herbert, Jr., and Allen were much younger than they are now—their father used to take them and other children to Rock Creek Park and build dams for them in the little streams. The man who then held the nation's food supply in the hollow of his hand, sloshed around in rubber boots, got all muddy and sloppy and enjoyed it immensely.

Hoover was in China on a mining job when the Boxer rebellion broke out. With him was his bride to whom he had been married in California—by a Catholic priest who had dispensation to marry Protestants—just before he sailed. They were in Tientsin when they uprising flamed and the Chinese attacked.

Hoover took an active part in organizing the Americans for defense of the city. He managed to save the life of a wealthy Chinese coal mine owner, one Chang Yen Chow, whom the inter-allied relief forces were on the point of executing as a Boxer sympathizer. Fearing seizure of his property, the canny mandarin signed his mines over to Hoover's company, a sort of trustee. They were developed to the vast benefit of all concerned.

In 1902 Hoover was called to London and made a partner in the great mining company that had sent him to Australia. He had not been there long before an employee absconded with a huge sum, leaving various customers and creditors very much in the lurch.

The senior partner was away at the time. The firm was not legally liable, but Hoover promptly announced that the firm would make all losses good. The senior partner was indignant when he heard of it and hastened back to London to tell Hoover that, for his solicitude, he could have the job of cleaning up the debts. Hoover did it and by 1906 everything was squared.

Hoover then went into business for himself. He opened mines in Burma, China, Korea, Australia, Russia and the United States. His wealth grew; he had remained in that job for the rest of his life he probably would have amassed one of the great fortunes of the world, comparable to those of Mellon and Morgan.

But fate had it otherwise. In 1914 the World War broke out, changing the whole course of Hoover's life and thrusting him into world-wide prominence. He ceased to be a mining expert and for the next six or seven years he served the world.

Washington, April 13—(AP)—Standing pat on its program of tax reduction, the United States Chamber of Commerce, which came to grips with the administration on this subject early in the present session, presented its recommendations today to the Senate Finance committee.

Submitted by Felix M. McWhirter of Indianapolis, a member of the Chamber's Committee on Federal Taxation, the program calls for a total cut of $394,000,000, more than $100,000,000 higher than that recommended by the House and nearly $200,000,000 above that now suggested as safe by the Treasury.

The proposals, first submitted to the House Ways and Means committee last November, and now repeated, call for:

Reduction of the corporation income tax to not more than 10 per cent.

Repeal of the remaining war excise taxes on particular business.

Repeal of the federal inheritance tax.

The administration is in partial agreement with this program, but differs widely with the proposed cut in the corporation levy. It now favors a reduction from 13½ to only 12 per cent. The House has proposed a 11½ per cent rate.

Mr. McWhirter said that nothing had developed in the last four months to cause the chamber to change its position.

McWhirter took exception to official estimates on corporation returns and back taxes and said the chamber could prove that its recommendations for cuts in 1928 and 1929, if accepted, would "still leave ample funds for statutory debt requirements and a 1929 year-end surplus in excess of $229,000,000, or a $69,000,000 surplus even under continued use on debt retirement of $160,000,000 of foreign interest payments."

Washington, April 13—(AP)—Standing pat on its program of tax reduction, the United States Chamber of Commerce, which came to grips with the administration on this subject early in the present session, presented its recommendations today to the Senate Finance committee.

Submitted by Felix M. McWhirter of Indianapolis, a member of the Chamber's Committee on Federal Taxation, the program calls for a total cut of $394,000,000, more than $100,000,000 higher than that recommended by the House and nearly $200,000,000 above that now suggested as safe by the Treasury.

The proposals, first submitted to the House Ways and Means committee last November, and now repeated, call for:

Reduction of the corporation income tax to not more than 10 per cent.

Repeal of the remaining war excise taxes on particular business.

Repeal of the federal inheritance tax.

The administration is in partial agreement with this program, but differs widely with the proposed cut in the corporation levy. It now favors a reduction from 13½ to only 12 per cent. The House has proposed a 11½ per cent rate.

Mr. McWhirter said that nothing had developed in the last four months to cause the chamber to change its position.

McWhirter took exception to official estimates on corporation returns and back taxes and said the chamber could prove that its recommendations for cuts in 1928 and 1929, if accepted, would "still leave ample funds for statutory debt requirements and a 1929 year-end surplus in excess of $229,000,000, or a $69,000,000 surplus even under continued use on debt retirement of $160,000,000 of foreign interest payments."

G. H. S. in the following paragraph taken from a letter recently received: "From the report cards previously sent you have no doubt noted that Mr. Norman Tompkins has made an excellent record at Beloit during the first semester, and I wish to take this opportunity to commend for the college, the work of Mr. Tompkins. Services were held in the Methodist church Easter Sunday. Rev. Tavenner the pastor, preached one of the best Easter sermons we have ever been permitted to listen to. In the evening at 7:30 the Ashton Methodist choir very kindly gave their time and service and presented a cantata, "Victory" under the direction of Miss Josephine Neal. The accompaniment was played by Miss Louie Quick in a very capable manner which added much to the success of the production. The cantata was very well given, the solos, duets, trio and quartet were especially well rendered. Franklin Grove was well favored and greatly appreciate the efforts of our Ashton friends. It was the general opinion of those who heard the cantata that it was one of the best ever sung in Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hotchkiss and son Billy were Dixon visitors Sunday.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

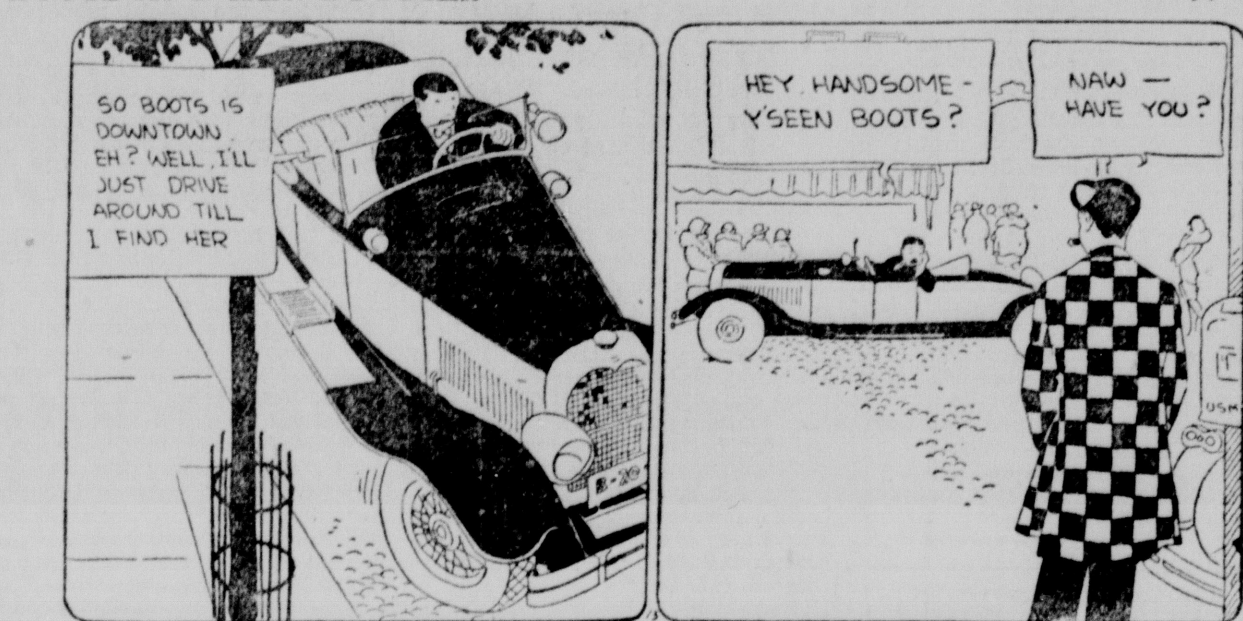

I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.—2 Tim. 4:7.

We cannot live on probabilities. The faith in which we can live bravely and die in peace must be a certainty, so far as it professes to be a faith at all, or it is nothing.—Froude.

JARDINE TO AID OF COLLEAGUE IN LETTER TO WILSON

Denies Charges of Interference by Secretary of Commerce

Washington, April 13.—(AP)—A strong defense of Secretary Hoover against charges that he has usurped some of the powers of the Agriculture Department and otherwise has worked to injure the farmer was made today by Secretary Jardine.

In a letter dated April 11 and made public today, the Agriculture Secretary told Charles S. Wilson, former Commissioner of Agriculture of New York state and now a farmer at Hall, New York, that "there is not the slightest essence of truth in these charges, and I would resent them if they were made with honest intentions."

Mr. Wilson had written Jardine saying he had heard the charge made that "Mr. Hoover, as Secretary of Commerce, has encroached upon the work of the Department of Agriculture and in other ways has hindered the operation of your department in the interest of the farmers."

"It has been my feeling," Wilson said, "that these charges were made for ulterior motives, but I have come to the conclusion that the farmers of New York state and of the country at large are deserving of a frank statement from you."

Understood Motives. Secretary Jardine said that he had "consistently refused to be drawn into a controversy over the unfounded charges, because he fully understood the motives of the small group that has been responsible for making them."

"Under normal circumstances," he wrote, "I would not dignify these attacks, but I have come to the conclusion that the farmers of this country are entitled to know the facts because these charges seriously reflect upon the work of this department and the twenty thousand splendid people who are listed on its rolls."

"During the three years in which I have been Secretary of Agriculture I have enjoyed the whole-hearted sympathetic support of Secretary Hoover in all matters pertaining to the administration of the Department of Agriculture, and his actions always have been in the interest of the Department's work and of the American farmer. In fact, the records show that in many instances in which the work of the two departments was involved he was actually partial to the Department of Agriculture."

Calling attention to much has been made of a statement that Hoover desired to absorb the foreign service work of the Agriculture Department, Jardine said the Commerce Secretary had signed a joint letter with him to the agricultural committees of Congress endorsing companion bills "clearly defining" the foreign service activities of the two departments.

Other examples of joint interest cited by Jardine were the co-operative project now being carried on by the two departments to find new uses for cotton and Hoover's support of his proposal to take the annual agricultural census November 1 instead of April 1 as some persons had suggested. Agricultural representatives, Jardine said, favored the latter date.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SALLY FORD is "famed out" to CLEM CARSON the summer she is 18 and leaves the state orphanage, the only home she has known from the time she was four. There she meets DAVID NASH, a noble and student, working on the farm for the summer. When Carson makes insulting remarks about their innocent friendship, David strikes him a crushing blow.

Sally and David run away and join a carnival train. David as Carson's helper and Sally in the side show disguised as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

NITA, a Hindu dancer, becomes infatuated with David and threatens to expose Sally to the police for the Carson affair if she doesn't keep "hands off" David. Sally tells David they must run away again. David points out the obstacles to their love but Sally says nothing can lessen her love for him and leaves the state orphanage. She tells him the crushing news she has learned that day about her mother, which NITA, BYBEE has uncovered for her in Kingston. The woman who had left her at the home was not her mother, but a man dressed to take the baby from New York and disappear.

At that site, there are stars in the darkness near them, addressing a man whom she calls Steve. Once in Capital City, Sally finds her fear of detection and rooms held by about under the charming disguise of the crystal gazer. Late Thursday, she is aroused by a voice beside her. She raises her eyes to see an Easterner of apparent culture, well-dressed, handsome, and in his wise, cruel eyes she sees something that makes her shudder.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXV

"Quite delicious, really!" the man with the cultured, eastern accent drawled, leaning more nonchalantly on his cane and twinkling his too wise, too bold black eyes at "Princess Lalla."

"But really now, I wouldn't say you're a freak, your highness. In fact, you're quite the most delicious little morsel I've seen since I left New York. If I were a Ziegfeld scout I assure you I'd be bubbling your praises in a ruinously verbose telegram, and the devil take the expense. Would you mind lifting that scrap of black lace that is tantalizing me most provokingly? I am tormented with the hope that your big eyes are really the purple pansies they appear to be through your veil."

"No!" He shook his head with humorous resignation as Sally shook her head in violent negation. "Well, well! One can't have everything, and really your arms and your adorable little hands and your Tanagra figurine body should be quite enough—as an appetizer. You don't happen to 'spell' the Hindu dancer—the ancient but still hopeful lady who has just been exercising her hips for my benefit—do you? But I suppose that is too much to ask of Providence. Life is full of these bitter disappointments, these nagging, unsatisfied desires—"

"Please!" Sally gasped, forgetting her carefully acquired accent, which had been bequeathed her, by way of Mrs. Bybee, by the erstwhile "Princess Lalla," now in a hospital, minus her appendix, but still too weak to jeopardize Sally's job. "I—I'm not permitted to talk to the audience—"

"Child, child!" the New Yorker protested, raising a beautifully kept hand admonishingly. "Spare me! I'm always being met with signs like that in New York—in elevators, busses, whatnots—But the biggest and best circus ever put on by the Y. M. C. A. Physical Department. Tickets are being distributed at the Y. M. C. A. starting today, among the boys and young men participating in the circus. A nice prize is being offered to the boy selling the most tickets. Anyone wishing to sell tickets may procure them either at the Y. M. C. A. office or by inquiring of George Scott at the Dixon National Bank."

Practice for Circus to Start This Eve

A special rehearsal has been arranged for the Seniors and Intermediates this evening at 7 o'clock to practice with the Jing Ling Brothers in the Pyramid Act for the Circus, which will take place next week, Friday and Saturday, April 20th and 21st. There will also be held a special practice for the Intermediates tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock for a Snappy Apparatus number. Every Intermediate is urged to be present for this important practice.

A keen interest is growing in the Circus and all indications point to since I am intrigued with the music of your voice—a very young and un-Turkish voice, if I may be permitted to say so—I shall be delighted to cross your little brown palm with silver, provided you will guarantee that your make-up does not rub off. I'm deplorably 'finicky.' "You'll have to wait till Gus, the Barker, starts my performance," she told him nervously, making no effort to deceive the blasé New Yorker by a tardy resumption of her "Turkish" accent. "But—oh, please go away! Don't tease me! You'll spoil the show if you make Smart-Aleck remarks on everything I say and do."

"Smart-Aleck?" The easterner raised his silky black brows, while his humorous but cruel mouth, beneath a small, exact black mustache, twitched with a rather rueful smile. "Child, that is the kindest cut of all! If I had been reared west of Fifth Avenue or a little farther downtown I would undoubtedly phrase it as a nasty crack! But we'll let it pass."

He walked nonchalantly up the steps leading to her platform and stood before her, only the small, black-velvet draped table with the crystal between them.

When he spoke again, in his humorous drawl, with his bold black eyes twinkling and challenging her, his words could not have been heard by anyone 10 feet away: "Will you permit me, your highness, to read the crystal for you? I'm really rather a wizard at it—a wow, as they say on Broadway, though I assure you, your highness, that I'm not a man to succumb to the insidiousness of slang. You must be rather tired of gazing, gazing, gazing into this intriguing but slightly flawed ball of glass—" and he touched it with a long, delicate finger, with a humorous contemptuousness.

"Please go away!" Sally pleaded breathlessly. "Why do you want to make fun of me? I have to earn my living somehow—"

"Do you?" he smiled, his brows going higher, while deep laugh wrinkles appeared suddenly in the clear olive of his lean cheeks. "Now I'm sure you should let me read the crystal for you, for it is obvious that you have not looked into the future at all!"

He cupped his slim, beautiful hands about the crystal, his back bending in an arch as graceful as the arch of a cat's back. The posture brought his face very near to hers, so that she saw the fine grain of his skin, caught a faint, indefinable but enchanting odor from his sleek dark hair, almost as dark as her own.

"Marvellous!" His voice became mockingly hushed and mysterious, he pretended to gaze into the very heart of the crystal. "I see your whole past boiling away in this magic crystal—slightly flawed, though it is!"

"My past!" she shivered, forgetting that he was faking just as she did. "You've run away from home, from poverty," he went on in that mocking, too beautiful voice, his black eyes shifting from the crystal to play their insolent, confident fire upon her wide-eyed face. "And you've run away from—a man! Of course," he added lightly, "you'll always be running away from a man—men—every man that looks at you. You're absolutely irresistible."

"Oh, spirit of H. L. Mencken hear me!" the New Yorker prayed. "Do girls in the middle west really say that still? I wouldn't have believed it! 'I'm not that kind of girl!' he repeated, laughing delightedly. "Of course you aren't, darling! No girl ever is! And heaven forbid that I should be the sort of man—fellow, you say out here—that you evidently believe I am! Now that we understand each other, I again suggest supper, a long, cooling drive in the governor's choicest limousine—the old boy does himself rather well in cars at the expense of the state—and a continuation of my extremely accurate reading of your future."

"No!" Sally flared, her timidity submerged in anger. "Let me go this minute! I don't like you! I hate you! If you don't turn loose my arm, I'll—I'll scream 'Hey, rube!'"

"What a dire threat!" the New Yorker laughed with genuine amusement. "Am I the rube? Is that your idea of a taunt so crushing that—"

"It means," Sally said with cold fury, "that every man connected with the carnival will rush into this tent and—simply tear you to pieces! It's the S O S signal of the circus and carnival, and it always works! Now—will you let me go? I swear I'll scream 'Hey, rube!' if you don't—"

"And I had planned such a delicious supper," the New Yorker mourned mockingly as he slowly released her arm, as if reluctant to forego the pleasure that rounded slimness and smoothness gave his highly educated fingers.

Sally cried a little in the dress tent, but she was too angry to give way utterly to tears. The thought which stung her pride most hurtfully was that the New Yorker had seen something bad in her eyes, something of the mother of whose shame she was a living witness.

But—! I guess I showed him!" she told herself fiercely as she dabbed fresh brown powder on her tear-streaked face. "He won't dare bother me again."

But he did dare. He was a nonchalant, smiling, insolent figure, leaning on his cane, as she went through the next performance. She pretended not to see him, but never for a moment, as she well knew, did his cold black eyes waver from their ironic but admiring contemplation of her enchanting little figure in purple satin trousers and green jacket.

And at the late afternoon performance—four o'clock—he was there again, his fine, cruel, humorous mouth smiling at his own folly. She thought of appealing to Gus, the Barker, to forbid him admission to the tent, but she knew Gus was too good a business man to heed such a wasteful request. Besides, the Barker seemed to like him, or at least to like immensely the bill which invariably passed hands when the showman and the glorified "rube" met.

Then suddenly, at ten minutes after four, the New Yorker ceased to have any significance at all to her, at least for the moment. He was wiped out completely in the flood of terror and joy that swept over her brain, making her so dizzy that she leaned against the crystal stand for support.

HEALTH DIET ADVICE

By Dr. Frank McCoy
"The Fast Way to Health"

Dr. McCoy will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Evening Telegraph. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

A LESSON ON BEEF MEAT

Many families do not use as much meat as they should because they consider it too expensive. But the truth is, there is hardly a food substance which contains so much valuable nourishment in the same amount at the same price.

One fault is that most people use too much meat at a meal when a quarter to a half pound of lean meat a day is the most healthful amount for the adult. Another point which is not generally realized is that the cheaper cuts of meat are just as nutritious and can be made just as appetizing as the more expensive sirloin and porterhouse steaks. There is a limited amount of these so called choice cuts of meat, and the high prices prevail largely because the general public will not buy the cheaper but as highly nutritious parts.

For ordinary family use the housewife with a limited allowance for food should use the leaner cuts and study in selecting the less expensive meats. American prime beef has earned the reputation of being the best in the world. This is because of recent improvements in breeding, feeding and shipping. At one time the long-horn Texas steer was the accepted American type, but this steer is now virtually obsolete, as the result of mixed breeding with high class imported stock. Range feeding exclusively has been succeeded by grain feeding, scientifically controlled for a long time before slaughtering.

The average American consumes one hundred and seventy-five pounds of meat a year, while English people only average one hundred and ten pounds per capita. The French eat only about one hundred pounds as much as the English, and the Germans, Austrians and Italians even less than this.

Beef can be considered both as a flesh forming and energy food as it contains fifteen and twenty per cent of protein, and also a considerable amount of fat. Beef is at its best after it has been hung for awhile and aged. Fresh beef even cut from young animals is tougher than older meat which has been properly aged.

The best beef when fresh has a light colored fat. Beef with a yellow fat must be looked upon with suspicion, although, this is not a sure sign that the meat is not wholesome. If the purchaser wishes to be sure of good beef, it is best not to buy the meat in cut rate shop as the cheap beef sold in these stores is liable to be cow meat, and not equal in quality to the steer meat which is by far the best beef to use.

Good steer meat will have a fine, firm, smooth texture and the flesh will be a bright red color intermixed with fine streaks of white fat. It should retain the impression of the finger after it is removed. Old or tough beef is elastic to the touch, while meat that is either too light in color or a deep purple should be avoided. Good beef should not have a sickly smell, or be wet and flabby. Boneless cuts are often sold by the retailer. This meat may be excellent if the butcher removes the bone himself, but if the butcher purchases their "boneless cuts" from the packing houses. These are easy for the inexperienced butcher to handle, but some claim that the meat deteriorates rapidly after so prepared and shipped.

In tomorrow's article I will explain about the best ways of using the cheaper cuts of beef.

INEXPENSIVE BEEF
Many housewives who are forced to prepare food for large families, but whose incomes are limited, often leave meat out of the diet two or three days in the week and substitute some starchy food in its place. Potatoes, beans, or macaroni and cheese should not be considered meat substitutes, and if used at all should be taken at some meal in the day which will not interfere with the meat or protein meal. Here are some suggestions for those who wish to use meat once a day and still keep the cost to the minimum.

Brisket and rump are the cheapest cuts of beef meat, and may be prepared in a wholesome manner by boiling. The meat should be tied up to preserve its shape, put into boiling water, plenty of vegetables added, and allowed to simmer gently until done. The present price of brisket or rump is twenty to twenty-five cents a pound.

Round steak may be prepared in the same manner by boiling, or may be broiled or pan broiled if properly hammered to break up the connective tissue. For pan-broiling the fat should be removed and the steak cooked in a dry pan, the meat being turned every second or two so that it is singed each time but not overly burned. Round steak may also be prepared into what is called a Salisbury steak. All fat and gristle are removed from the meat and it is run through the meat grinder. This ground beef is then formed into patties one-half to an inch in thickness, placed in a dry pan, and baked in a hot oven for about five minutes. I believe this is the most nutritious and healthful way to prepare any kind of beef meat, no matter what price you pay for it.

Please observe that round steak, next to rump and brisket, is the cheapest beef meat on the market, most of the time selling around thirty cents a pound. When round steak sells at this price, sirloin steak is about fifteen cents more per pound, and with more waste, both in bone and fat.

Sirloin steak should be cooked by either broiling under the fire, or by pan-broiling. A porterhouse steak is something like the sirloin, but costs ten cents more per pound. This is just a "choice" cut because there are less of them to the carcass. When the porterhouse or sirloin steak has had the bone removed it sells for eighty cents a pound, while the filet part is still more expensive, bringing ninety cents a pound. These expensive steaks are all right for those who can afford to pay the price, or for those who wish to entertain and make an impression, but the ninety cent filet is in no way superior to food value to the thirty cent round steak.

Many of my patients who can well afford to pay for the more expensive cuts of beef have now learned to use round steak purely because they enjoy its flavor.

One must not confuse the ground round steak with the ordinary hamburger sold in the shops. Although hamburger meat may be perfectly wholesome when made entirely from good pieces of meat, it nevertheless usually contains a large amount of fat and is not as easily digested as the ground round steak from which all fat and gristle have been removed. One pound of round steak usually makes enough Salisbury steak for three people, as there is about a quarter of a pound of fat, gristle and bone to be removed. This leaves a quarter of a pound apiece for each, which is usually enough meat for the day. The cost, therefore, is about ten cents a person, and a few cents more apiece will supply all the salad and cooked-non-starchy vegetables needed to make a well combined and nutritious meal.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
QUESTION: N. D. W. asks: "Is there any help for my father, who has a 'wooly' feeling in his head and sometimes falls, otherwise seems well?"
ANSWER: It is not possible for me to diagnose cases by mail as well as your family physician can who has the opportunity to physically examine your father. A good diagnosis should determine the cause of his trouble.

QUESTION: R. L. asks: "Are Shredded Wheat Biscuits an alkaline or acid food? Should salt be used in cooking oatmeal or other cereals? If so, how much salt to a pint of water?"
ANSWER: Shredded Wheat is made of shreds of real whole wheat and then toasted. It can be considered a neutral food, according to the acid and alkaline classification. I do not advocate seasoning any cereals while they are cooking. Oatmeal may be seasoned afterwards with salt, butter or cream, but no sugar.

QUESTION: Mrs. M. W. asks: "What is the treatment for lack of hydrochloric acid?"
ANSWER: Many people who think they have a lack of hydrochloric acid have received this impression after having a laboratory test made of the stomach contents, pumped out after a meal of crackers and water or toast and tea. This is an unreliable test for stomach acidity, as no gastric juice is needed to digest either the toast or the crackers. If any acid at all is found in this test, it is probably due to over-acidity; but, on the other hand, a total lack of hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice does not indicate anything in particular unless the test is made after a meal where some protein has been taken. The importance of such tests is often overestimated. If there is really a lack of hydrochloric acid, the best treatment is to stimulate the gastric secretions by the use of fruit juices taken either as a fast, or used an hour before meals.

QUESTION: Stan writes: "I have heard of your wonderful cures and I would like you to tell me a remedy for pimples. Also, why do they come on my face?"
ANSWER: Pimples usually come from constipation and the use of too many carbohydrates and hydrocarbons which mean starch, sugar and fats or oils. Take a course of enema treatments for several weeks and cut down on all of your heavy foods, using more salads and greens.

QUESTION: M. L. L. asks: "Is peanut butter with green apples a good combination? I thought any nut butter had too much starch."

ANSWER: Peanut butter made from roasted peanuts has completely lost all of its starch, so it can be combined with any other kind of food. The nut butters made of nuts that have not been dextrinized have a very high percentage of starch.

QUESTION: A. L. writes: "Please advise me in a case of paralysis, whole left side. Hemorrhage of the brain" caused a clot to form which hasn't dissolved so far after ten weeks. Patient is 73 years of age. What causes pyorrhea?"

ANSWER: The best way to dissolve a blood clot on the brain is to take a fruit fast for several days or several weeks if necessary. The sooner this is done after an attack of paralysis the more hope you can have for a quick recovery. It is true that one of the causes of pyorrhea is a form of acidosis which comes from a lowered alkalinity of the blood. This can be corrected through eliminating the acid-forming foods and using more of the green vegetables and fruits. A pyorrhea specialist should also be consulted and treatments taken to remove any tartar on the teeth and infection around the gums. The teeth should be brushed two or three times daily, using some alkaline dentifrice, each brushing to extend over a period of at least five minutes.

STOP INTERFERING WITH HEALTH

The only ones to take up the subject of dieting are those who are suffering from some ailment, or whose loved ones have been told they have some serious disease. Those who have searched from one method of cure to another, and who have failed to get results from medicine and surgery, finally turn to dietetic treatment in hopes of a cure. It seems to me that as I have studied the minds of patients, the first thought that comes to them in this regard is to find some food to bring about a cure—that is—some specific article which is needed by the body to effect a cure.

I am more and more convinced that this is not possible of accomplishment in most cases, but that the secret lies in what may be called "negative dieting," that is, learning to eliminate those articles of food which have been used regularly, and which have interfered with health.

Disease is an un-natural condition which may be said to be simply "impaired health."

Health writers and dietitians are too inclined to lay emphasis upon such diseases as beri beri, pellagra, rickets, etc., and point out that they are caused by an absence of the normal mineral salts in food, and that this absence produces disease. While this is no doubt true in certain parts of the world, such as in India, it is not true that these diseases exist to any great extent in civilized countries, as in America or Europe.

The fault in America is that 999 out of a 1000 eat too much, and are over-nourished rather than under-nourished. All of the common disorders, such as fevers, headaches, rheumatism, indigestion, etc., are not caused by one particular food, but by using too much of every kind of food, especially those such as the starch and sugar foods which contain an abundance of waste material not necessary for use in the body.

It is difficult to think of a single common disease which is not caused by over eating, or by using foods in wrong combinations. Of course, it is true people often neglect to use food of the right quality, but you will usually find, if you study their diet for a week, that they have used a sufficient amount of all of those natural elements necessary for the body. It is often the case that they do not get the good from the vital foods that they do use because of a poor mixture with so many other foods (which produces indigestion) and consequently the good foods cannot be assimilated by the body.

In my experience as a dietitian, I have never felt the need in any one case of advising a patient to use more food as long as the food he was eating was of the right quality. My advice in almost every disease is invariably to cut down on the food supply—to eliminate this—or to cut down on that kind of food, and if the patients do this they are sure to get good results.

Even in such diseases as pernicious anemia the "fast" cure will be found to be the most effective. Patients who are anemic can live for two or three weeks on nothing but orange juice, and the quality of the blood will increase steadily during that time. It is simply because the body is free from its burden of too much food, and can use the small amount of vital nourishment in the orange and convert it into valuable blood cells, where the body has lost the power to do this when encumbered by too much food.

After you have tried the milk cure, the buttermilk cure, the Salisbury diet, the raw food regime, etc.,

ABE MARTIN

Somethin' else that's becomin' rarer ever'day is home grown daughters. Next t' an invitational affair nothin' leaves as many sore spots as fallin' off a stepladder with an arm full o' window curtains.

and these cures have failed to bring about the desired results, remember what I have said in this article and try the "fasting" cure in some form—learn to give up those foods which have been interfering with your health. Don't be so anxious to build up health as to remove the obstructions which have interfered with health. Disease then disappears as if by magic, and you will find yourself once again a radiant transformer of universal energy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: J. C. S. asks: "Will you please tell me the cause of watery eyes? Every time I laugh my eyes run in streams, or if I face the wind. There is also an itchy irritation in both corners next to the nose. My eyesight is good. Am 50 years old."

ANSWER: There must be some irritation of the eyelids and tear ducts to cause your trouble. Such irritation usually comes from the same causes which produce irritation of the stomach and intestines. The effects of wrong food combinations, producing hyperacidity of the stomach, may be seen in irritation of any of the mucous membranes.

QUESTION: Mrs. R. W. asks: "How about canned milk for coffee?"

ANSWER: Canned milk would not make any more trouble than fresh milk, but if you must drink coffee, try using it black. Much of the harmful effect from coffee is no doubt due to the use of sugar and cream with which the coffee is flavored. However, canned milk is fully as wholesome as raw milk if used for cooking purposes.

QUESTION: Mrs. B. Mc asks: "Do you advise exercise for one with high blood pressure?"

ANSWER: One with high blood pressure should take a reasonable amount of carefully selected exercise combined with long walks. These exercises must be taken slowly, and the walking must not be too fast.

QUESTION: Mrs. K. L. asks: "Can a child do itself any physical harm by holding its breath if, as a means of breaking this habit, the mother ignores the child and leaves it alone during these spells?"

ANSWER: Yes, it is possible for a child to hurt himself by thus hysterically holding his breath. It is a hard thing to know how much attention a baby should be given during such stubborn crying spells—so much depends upon the type and temperament of the particular child.

Publicity Methods of Utilities are Probed

Washington, April 12—(AP)—The Federal Trade Commission inquired today into the publicity methods of the Illinois Committee on Public Utilities Information.

Proceeding under the Walsh resolution for an investigation into public utility financing, the commission examined Bernard J. Mullaney of Chicago, director of the committee since 1919, who said the committee sends information and clip sheets, to editors of newspapers, to 635 Illinois high schools, and to clubs. Local members of the organization are encouraged to create opportunities for speakers on public utilities, he said.

When the committee was organized he said, opposition to government-owned utilities was incidental and that the purpose of the committee had been to correct wrong information. Under questioning of Commissioner Edgar A. McCulloch, he said that his organization is now opposed to government ownership of public utilities.

Rob Roy MacGregor of Chicago, assistant director of the committee, the first witness, identified a speech he wrote to be directed against any Senatorial candidate who advocated government ownership of utilities. The speech was in answer to a note from Mullaney who asked him what position he would take against such a candidate. The speech, which was put into the records, said that advocates of government ownership of utilities were socialists, reds, pinks and Bolsheviks.

Before the hearing got underway, Robert E. Healy, chief counsel for the commission, introduced into the record certain testimony of Frank L. Smith, Ira C. Copley, Clement Studebaker, and A. F. Moore, taken by the Reed campaign fund committee at Chicago in connection with the investigation of the Copley Press, Inc.

Mullaney said that it was foolish to try to influence newspapers because of purchased advertising. Friendly relations with editors of the newspapers were sought he said. The committee sends news releases to the Illinois newspapers and keeps a close check on the matter printed, he said.
